Reflection for the Baptism of Jesus

John's baptism was for repentance which Jesus did not need. The "voice from heaven" says God wills it and Jesus obeys. So too are we to obey Jesus.

Cold and Flu Season

Due to the severity of this season's flu virus, there are people who prefer to refrain from the usual handshake at the sign of peace. Children and elderly, along with those with diminished immune systems need to be more cautious, so be aware that a verbal expression of peace may be the appropriate form of communication at Mass for people.

Book Discussion

“The Reed of God” by Caryll Houselander

St. Joseph Faith Formation Center

Fridays: 9:30-11:00 am

Led by Sara Buscher

January 17–End of Part 1, February 14 –End of Part 2, March 13 – End of Part 3, April 17 – End of Part 4.

This outstanding spiritual-yet-sensible writer and mystic sets the record straight for those of us in the doldrums. She quickly establishes the fact that God is present in the emptiness of life and there is nothing that can bring you to Him faster than changing a dirty diaper or mowing the lawn. She proposes the Blessed Mother as an exemplar for us: she who understood perfectly what it meant to be a reed (flute) in the hand of God, to maintain a purposeful emptiness that “receives the piper’s breath [and utters] the song that is in his heart.” Each of our lives is a song conceived by the Divine Piper, unique and full of beauty, and Houselander draws us to preserve that purposeful emptiness within us for the Master’s breath and life. ## Couple begins podcast to help connect Christ into today's secular culture

BY JEFF KUROWSKI | THE COMPASS

GREEN BAY — On one occasion, while listening to music in the car, Jake and Cathy Moore began analyzing the lyrics of the song that was playing. They broke down the message of the song in terms of their faith.

"We just had a really great conversation," said Cathy. "Jake said, 'We should do something with this. Someone should be recording us.'"

The idea for the couple's podcast was formed. The mission for "TruthPop," which launched last spring, is "connecting Christ into culture." Most episodes feature Jake and Cathy analyzing pop songs, movies and television shows from a faith perspective.

For example, the song "Don't Give Up on Me" by Andy Grammer was the topic of the Oct. 3 episode. Songs by Halsey, Selena Gomez and Dierks Bentley were also among the music covered in season one of TruthPop. Both Jake and Cathy enjoy Christian music, but have focused on secular selections for the podcast.

"You don't have to just listen

SAM LUCERO | THE COMPASS

Jake and Cathy Moore are creators of the podcast, "TruthPop," which they began last spring to connect "Christ into culture." The Moores are members of St. John the Baptist Parish in Howard.

to Christian music," said Jake. "There is truth in other music as well. I like the phrase, 'You have to be in control of the medium, you can't let the medium control you.' You have to ask yourself those deep questions; what music do I listen to and how is it affecting my life?"

Movies covered in the first season of the podcast include "Toy Story 4" and "Yesterday."

"Throughout the week, we keep our eyes and ears open to music, TV shows or movies," said Cathy. "We bring ideas up to each other. Maybe we can pull a topic from it. To prepare for the show, we go over certain topics and have a rough draft. It's a relaxed plan."

FRANKLY FRANCIS

Dear Brothers and Sisters,

The Gospel's journey throughout the world continues tirelessly in the Book of the Acts of the Apostles, and passes through the city of Ephesus, manifesting its salvific scope. Thanks to Paul, some 12 men are baptized in the name of Jesus and experience receiving the warmth of the Holy Spirit which regenerates them (cf. Acts 19:1-7). Several miracles then take place through the apostle: the sick are healed and the possessed are freed (cf. Acts 19:11). This happens because the disciple resembles his Teacher (cf. Lk 6:40) and he makes him present, communicating to his brothers and sisters that same new life he received from him. Indeed, every evangelizer is conscious of being, in his person and through his actions, "a mission on this earth," and of being branded by fire, by this mission of "bringing light, blessing, enlivening, raising up, healing and freeing" (Evangelii Gaudium, n. 273).

Mother-son tandem teams up to teach religious education class

BY SAM LUCERO | THE COMPASS

GREEN BAY — Last September, when Julio Zuniga Jr., 15, was asked by his mother, Juanita Fiscal Zuniga, to help her teach the confirmation class at St. Philip the Apostle Parish, he turned to his confirmation saint, Anthony of Padua, for inspiration.

St. Anthony is the patron saint of lost things, and Zuniga cleverly took this theme to heart when he decided to take up his mother's invitation.

"I figured that maybe if I help (teach the confirmation class), I can help students find their faith, find the connection towards God," he said.

Zuniga, who was a student in last year's confirmation class, said he was initially reluctant to volunteer. "I had trouble coming to class (when) I was doing my confirmation, so I figured I might not have time for it," he said. "But little by little, I started feeling the call ... and thought, 'Yeah, why not?' So far it's been great being able to help students."

Finding and sharing goodness, beauty and truth

Dear brothers and sisters in Christ:

A few weeks ago, I traveled to Baltimore to attend meetings for the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops. These meetings, which take place every year in June and November, are an opportunity to gather with my brother bishops to discuss issues within the church in the United States.

BISHOP'S CORNER

Bishop David Ricken

While several topics were addressed in our time together, I found one particular conversation to be especially interesting and relevant to our efforts here in this diocese: building a culture of missionary discipleship. Bishop Robert Barron, who heads the Committee on Evangelization and Catechesis, shared some of the research the committee has done on the religiously unaffiliated, those often referred to as the "nones." Today, as many as 25% of Americans report that they are not affiliated with any particular religion; many are former Catholics. While these numbers are startling, Bishop Barron's message focused on how we can reach out and engage the unaffiliated, which should be one of our priorities as missionary disciples.

Specifically, he encouraged us to walk the paths of goodness, beauty and truth. Each of these paths presents opportunities to speak to the heart of people and draw them deeper into the richness of the faith. Finding goodness, beauty and truth in the world naturally leads a person closer to God, who is goodness, beauty and truth.

Yet as I reflect on these three suggestions for reaching the nones, I recognize that we can't give what we don't have. So perhaps before we focus our efforts on others, we should take some time to rediscover goodness, beauty and truth in the world and in the church. The Advent and Christmas seasons provide ample opportunities to do so, and I'd like to offer some suggestions for you to consider.

This time of year is often known as the season of giving, and there are countless ways we can embrace this spirit of goodness. We can reach out to serve those in need in our communities by donating winter clothes, adopting a family and buying gifts, or volunteering at a shelter or a food pantry. Another way we can give is by spending time with people. Make it a point in our holiday gatherings to really be present to those around us, or take time to visit a friend, relative or even a stranger who is homebound or in a nursing home. Devoting ourselves to the humble service of others is a way to make the love of Christ known in the world.

The beauty of God is abundantly evident this time of year. One way we see this beauty is in the darkness and stillness of nature. Take a quiet walk and let yourself be captivated by the beauty of creation. Decorate your home and appreciate the way our churches are transformed to prepare for the coming of Jesus. Slow down and take note of the beautiful liturgies this time of year with their music, candles and colors.
